You can check that this adviser is still an active member on our website. SOLLA is not regulated to provide Financial Advice. This is provided by the individual accredited members who are regulated by the FCA.

The Society of Later Life Advisers (SOLLA) was founded in 2008 as a 'not for profit' organisation, to meet the needs of consumers, advisers and those who provide financial products and services to the Later Life market.

It aims to ensure that consumers are better informed about financial issues in later life, and can find an Accredited Adviser.

SOLLA is committed to:

- Promoting and raising awareness amongst consumers, their families and professional advisers of financial issues in Later Life.
- Building relationships with both statutory and voluntary agencies, charities, housing and social care providers, financial services firms and organisations who are interested in the financial wellbeing of those in Later Life.
- Raising the standards of practice of those engaged in advising in the older client market by promoting the highest levels of professionalism in financial advice.
- Identifying and developing best practice by means of high quality training and the dissemination of latest information and know-how.
- Acting as a centre of technical excellence for Later Life Advisers.
- Providing input into legislative and policy change and contributing to debates on policy.
